1 Visiting Sedona’s Unique Chapel Of The Holy Cross
As the golden hues of fall embrace the Arizona landscape, Sedona transforms into a breathtaking blend of picturesque vistas and exhilarating experiences. Venture through our iconic crimson canyons. The Chapel of the Holy Cross welcomes several million Pilgrims and tourists every year. It is a place of great beauty and peace. Built to a twin pinnacled spur, about 250 feet high, jutting out a thousand foot rock wall, “solid as the rock of Peter” the building of the Chapel was completed in April, 1956.

2 Grand Canyon South Rim
Grand Canyon National Park and the city of Sedona are two of Arizona’s most impressive, most popular tourist destinations, and for good reason. The scale and majesty of the Grand Canyon is unfathomable, and Sedona’s red rock formations and desert landscape is as alluring as it gets.
The South Rim views are the classic Grand Canyon views with which you're probably familiar. Wide, expansive, and panoramic - the Grand Canyon as seen from the South Rim is an almost surreal, unbelievable sight that will leave you changed forever.
There are three sections to the South Rim of the Grand Canyon: Desert View Drive, Grand Canyon Village, and Hermit Road. Each of these sections offers a slightly different experience, and if you have the time, it is worth it to visit each spot.
